Al Salam Bank-Bahrain signed an agreement with The Bahrain Institute of Banking and Finance (BIBF) to facilitate a first of its kind Planning and Capacity Building Programme and arrange for the second line of management, to select, train and prepare the future leaders of the Bank.

One-year programme CASS Business School

The customised one-year programme paves the way for young Bahraini high potentials to take on more senior roles through offering practical steps for developing and implementing a comprehensive succession plan for the Bank.

The BIBF will work in association with CASS Business School, UK - specialised in executive training - through a series of activities, workshops, simulation-based training as well as mentoring.

"We are glad to partner with the BIBF, which plays a key role in shaping the economic future of Bahrain, and at Al Salam Bank-Bahrain we believe that continuous training is key to sustained development in individuals, teams and organisations,"

Yousif Taqi,

Director and Group Chief Executive Officer

"I believe this is a positive step forward towards enabling young Bahrainis to preserve the corporate knowledge and training related to the industry and their professions,"

Dr. Ahmed Al Shaikh,
BIBF's Director

Dubai-based carrier said.

Airbus had previously said it would have to end production of the A380 if it failed to secure the huge Emirates deal.

Alongside the contract signing, visiting French Prime Minister Edouard Philippe and Emirates chairman Sheikh Ahmed bin Saeed al-Maktoum discussed the expansion of air services between France and the United Arab Emirates, the airline said without elaborating.

The latest order brings Emirates' commitment to the A380 program to 178 aircraft, it said, adding that it was evaluating engine options for the new planes.
